Texas A&M Race, Identity & Social Equity (RISE) Conference Call for Papers

The Texas A&M Race, Identity & Social Equity (RISE) Program Committee invites proposals for the second annual conference that will take place on Friday, March 22nd, 2019. We welcome proposals for panels, individual papers and alternative session formats that allow for audience participation and community engagement. We encourage submissions from undergraduates, graduates, faculty, and staff that would like to present research focused in the RISE areas. The RISE initiative provides a year-long research opportunity for undergraduate students at Texas A&M, culminating with presentations of the research at the RISE Conference. The RISE Conference also seeks to provide an opportunity for a campus wide discussion around significant issues of race, identity, and social equity on campus, in the nation, and on a global scale. To learn more about the RISE initiative please visit our webpage at <http://dms.tamu.edu/diversity/tamu-rise/>

All submissions should be sent via email to tamurise@tamu.edu and are due by December 15, 2018.

In your email, please include the following:
